Religious Studies (Religion, Politics and Global Affairs), BA

LARELPGBA

Accelerated options for this program are not currently available to ASU Online students.

Questions regarding religion and its relationship with governments, public health, and migration directly affect our daily lives. With a foundation in religious studies, you are prepared to solve real-world problems like these from within any of a multitude of careers.

Program Description

The BA program in religious studies with a concentration in religion, politics and global affairs considers how the study of religion expands the understanding of political culture, communal formation, governance, nationalism, statehood and citizenship in both domestic and global contexts.

Students explore the role religion has in shaping political values, social movements, civic organizations and communal norms, with particular attention on how religion impacts issues of health, the environment, migration, peace, conflict, violence and various issues of social justice. Special consideration is given to the religious intersections of nationality, ethnicity, race, gender and other vital facets of human community and identity.

Program Learning Outcomes

Program learning outcomes identify what a student will learn or be able to do upon completion of their program. This program has the following program outcomes:

- Formulate a thesis about a significant issue in religious studies related to politics and global affairs.
- Address and analyze a scholarly issue in religious studies related to politics and global affairs.
- Develop a sustained, evidence-based argument about a significant issue in religious studies related to politics and global affairs.

Global Opportunities

Global Experience

Religion plays a major role in societal norms, politics and traditions all over the world. Through study abroad (there are over 250 unique programs), students witness diverse religions and cultures firsthand and gain a heightened understanding of the impact of religion. The cultural competency, communication and critical thinking skills they also acquire will enhance their resumes. https://goglobal.asu.edu/

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences recommends the following study abroad programs for students majoring in religious studies with a concentration in religion, politics and global affairs: https://goglobal.asu.edu/students/major/shprs/religious-studies.
