Prepare to lead in your chosen field of study. By strengthening your research, design and leadership skills, you'll be equipped to collaborate across disciplines to solve complex problems in the fields of science and technology.

Description
A minor in technological leadership equips students with the skills needed to solve tomorrow's most pressing problems. Through a series of engaging and hands-on courses, students learn how to recognize and describe unsolved problems in the fields of science and technology and practice implementing creative problem-solving techniques to design potential solutions to those problems. This minor complements and enhances a student's major with key skills in collaborative research, technology design and interdisciplinary leadership.
