

Educational Studies, Minor

TEEDSTMIN

Learning happens everywhere and in all industries and professions. This program prepares you to work with learners of all ages --- not just in schools, but also in nonprofit settings, community organizations and businesses.

Description

The educational studies minor prepares students to work with children, youth and adults in a variety of learning contexts.

Students broaden their skill set by completing specialized coursework in topics such as pedagogy, educational technology and problem-solving.

Students learn how to apply educational techniques in many professional settings. The minor provides a foundation for students to make an impact as educators in a society in which the importance of lifelong learning and learning outside traditional school-based environments is likely to grow.
